Dear Dave,

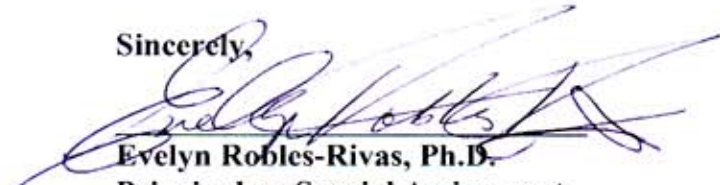

It is my pleasure to write a letter in support of the Juggling for Success Program. We had the opportunity to have a two day program in our school and it was a great success.

Every child, parent and teacher enjoyed the Climate Change program. Our children are very young, just kindergarten through second grade, but they all learned a great deal about our planet and their role in keeping it green and clean. Classes were age and grade appropriate and the music and games made learning fun. The assembly at the end of the day gave children the big picture about the carbon cycle, and when they got a chance to become Environmental Heroes they took their pledge to Reduce, Reuse, Recycle and Respect very seriously.

The second day of our program, our evening activity was huge. We have never had such an enormous, active and excited crowd at an evening performance before. Parents were just as engaged as the children and were thrilled to be learning things they could do to help our planet get clean and stay healthy. In the evening the children and their parents learned how we can do little things here in New Haven right in our own houses to help the polar bears, the penguins, the frogs and the trees and animals in the rain forest. This was done without fear and guilt, but with lots of fun. As promised, the program ended with hope for the future when parents and students had the opportunity to take home their Family Sustainability Checklists.

I would highly recommend this program for all grade levels. Our primary students benefited greatly from the program. This program will help our children to make better decisions and will benefit our school and community at large.

Sincerely,

Evelyn Robles-Rivas, Ph.D.
